Enhanced Invention Disclosure practice

A money saving tool for patent applicants wishing to minimize the expense of attorney involvement. This template converts the disclosure process into a document approximating a provisional patent application by instructing the applicant in his proper organization of information. Examples are provided for each section, together with a corresponding fill-in-the-blank template. Versions are available for electrical, electromechanical and biotechnology applications. For copies, please contact the author, William M. Wesley (bwesley@mhmlaw.com).
